GENERAL APPROPRIATION BILL.

ITS ADOPTION BY THE SENATE.

THE TAX BILL PASSED IN HOUSE.

Statement of War Department Claims.

Special Dispatch to the Commercial
WASHINGTON, D. C., June 26, 1868.

General Appropriation Bill.

The Senate at a late hour this evening finally passed the general appropriation bill, though Gainey, Chandler, Yeager and Tipton tried to prevent this action by dodging out of the chamber when they were voted down on a motion to adjourn. All but Chandler came back, however, when a proposition was made to send the Sergeant-at-Arms after them. The greater portion of the day was spent on the question of increasing the salaries of some of the heads of bureaus. The amendment was at last carried by 24 to 15, increasing the pay of Commissioner of Pensions, Commissioner of Customs and First and Second Comptrollers of the Treasury to $4,500, and that of the Commissioner of the Land Office, Superintending Architects, Register of the Treasury and all not of the Auditors of the Treasury to $4,000. One good amendment prohibiting the use of the grounds of the capital as a show room for the miserable so-called works of art that are constantly being sent up there. A big hawk job, to buy ten thousand copies of somebody's works on the Constitution, brought in by the Judiciary Committee, was handsomely defeated by nearly two to one. The Bureau of Statistics was abolished and the official head of Delmar, in effect, was cut off by a unanimous vote. The duties are hereafter to be performed by the Special Commissioner of the Revenue. Is over.

The Tax Bill.

The House finished the tax bill this afternoon, and it will go to the Senate to-morrow afternoon if it can be engrossed in time. The duty on imported cigars was fixed at two dollars and a half and twenty-five per cent. ad valorem. A great fight took place on the back section. The Committee of the Whole, with a great attendance in the House, made a gain, many amendments to section 108 of the bill, so that it became much more stringent than as reported from the Ways and Means Committee. Mr. Butler, then underneath again to bring in a very caving old proviso as a new section and showed great surprise and disgust when it was voted out of order. The bill was finally reported from the Committee of the Whole to the House, and the hard tussle then came up again. The Ways and Means got out all their forces and the section that had been stricken out by the House majority was now restored by four times majority. Many members voted to remove evidently under the impression that further amendments would be adopted. They discovered their mistake when the roll was called, and section 108 and 109 were finally adopted just as reported by General Schenck. The proceedings on the report caused such excitement, and there was a good deal of amusement at the way in which some extra sharp members caught themselves in their own trap. All the other fifty amendments made in Committee of the Whole were adopted, a division being called on only three of them.

The Printing Bureau.

The House Committee on Reconstruction have since completed their report upon the consolidation of the printing of the two Houses and of Departments. One of the changes under consideration by the committee, and which they are very likely to recommend, is that the present system be abolished, except so far as printing the work upon various species of notes and bonds is concerned, the plan of the committee being to print the same at one point by such companies as may contract to do the same, to print the bonds by some other company, and finally to have the process at the Treasury.

War Claims.

A very large class of claims which have been pending for some time before the War Department have been referred by General Schofield to a board of officers, who are instructed to examine and report upon the merits of each case, and to call upon the Department or parties interested for all evidence needful to complete the investigation. This method has been adopted as more rapid, less cumbersome and less expensive than the Claims Commission, which has been discontinued.

In a specimen of the operations of the Bureau of Education, the forthcoming report of the Commissioner just authorized by both Houses is little more than a reprint of the monthly issues of the Journal of Education, published in Boston. In fact, the matter from this monthly was set up in the Government printing-office as Government copy, plates cast, taken to Boston, the monthly published, and then the plates brought back home, and from them the annual report of the Bureau of Education is about to be printed.

Collins's Deceased Savings.

Speaker Colfax denies the report that he is about to be married to a lady in Detroit. Even the mother declares that there is no foundation for the story, says he means what he says, is not joking, etc., which will be recognized as the old style of denial in such cases.

WASHINGTON, June 26, 1868.

SENATE.

Mr. HOWARD presented the petition of the Board of Trade of Detroit, Michigan, praying for the passage of a law to prevent the issue of fractional currency, and to substitute therefor a coin currency. Referred to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. CONKLING presented the petition of Thomas Hamilton, praying for the passage of a law to authorize the Secretary of the Treasury to pay him for certain property taken from him by the United States. Referred to the Committee on Claims

The Daily Commercial

SATURDAY, JUNE 27, 1868.

The COMMERCIAL is the largest daily paper in the State, and, from forty-one to forty-four columns, is the largest paper published in Pittsburgh. For the same reason that it is the largest paper, it is the cheapest paper that can be bought literally, gives full market reports, and all the news of the day.

In point of the intrinsic value of its market reports of the COMMERCIAL, as well as in the daily reports regularly copied by the New York Herald, Shipping List, Iron Age, and other papers of the character in that and other cities, and that leading English commercial papers and circulars more freely express them and credit. There is either the Standard value, hardly an Iron Factory, Oil Refinery, or leading manufactory of any kind that is not a subscriber to the COMMERCIAL, principally because its reports are the only full and reliable ones of the Pittsburgh markets.

We commence on our fourth page this morning the publication of a business directory—a feature that will be appreciated by the mercantile and manufacturing interests and those identified therewith.

Andrew and Jeff. must make room for Gen. Winfield. Gen. McDowell is said to report to Gen. Grant that the State has ratified the Constitution and elected the Republican ticket. It was so in the case of Georgia. The Democrats have a victory for nearly a week, but when the ratifications came in the best was on the other leg. We forgot—may as turn out in Mississippi.

The star of Hancock is said to be rising. The opponents of Pendleton, it is said, regard the General as the most available instrument for killing him off. Grant appears to be already cold, the only thing that has been achieved by him being an exhibition of himself which no man in his position should be proud of. Seymour's speech before the New York Academy of Music, Thursday evening, evidently means business—and Mr. Seymour engages in no business without intending to make something handsome for himself. That his friends mean to nominate him if they can, and that he has agreed to the nomination, cannot be questioned. His speech is his best card, and it will be observed that while he spoke for fairness in the Convention, his argument on the floaters was in opposition to the Pendleton doctrine. As the time approaches for making the nomination the feeling among the friends of the different candidates, and the doubt how the thing will come out, increases. The fact that one he said is that the leading candidates will be PENDLETON, SEYMOUR, HANCOCK and CASS.

A PHILADELPHIA paper says that the most perfect speaking machine ever invented is now being exhibited in Paris, Surgery. It is worked by keys, and the lady performer announces through its medium with a rapidity and precision that even astounds the visitors. The only perceptible fault in the machine is the sharper or lisping sounds, such as the first of the letter "S." If this should come to the knowledge of our Congress, it is expected that at least several of the members will be ordered and the expense put in the next appropriation bill.

A WASHINGTON dispatch says that the Committee of Ways and Means will probably conclude not to take into consideration any of the financial schemes or panaceas referred to them. It is said the committee are of the opinion that the agitation of these schemes would only disturb the business and financial interests of the country. The committee have discovered that behind nearly every one of the projects for consolidating the debt, there is a scheme to enrich certain bankers and others.

THE Hon. Samuel Hooper, the able Republican representative of the Fourth District of Massachusetts, declines re-nomination. The regret at this decision is not confined to his constituents. The country at large participates in it.

General Cass and the Connellsville Railroad.

To the Editor of the Pittsburgh Commercial:

A writer in your issue of the 23d instant attempts to defend General Cass from the imputation of indifference towards the Pittsburgh and Connellsville and Allegheny Valley roads, and demands "that the facts be made to appear, and on the person each and all be compelled to bear the odium of their grievous blunder."

So far as the Connellsville road is concerned the facts are these: When the difficulties were removed the President of that Company, representing also Mr. Garrett, President of the Baltimore and Ohio Road, went to General Cass to consult upon the best plan for carrying on the negotiations for an alliance between the two roads. General Cass at once expressed his decided views in favor of Pittsburgh, and requested that General Cass would, on this account, come to Baltimore. General Cass readily accepted, and named a day for the meeting, and requested that Mr. Garrett be present on the occasion named. At the appointed time Mr. Garrett failed to appear, expressing President Garrett's regret for an interview, and another point was named by General Cass. At the time appointed Mr. Garrett again failed to appear, and sent a message that he was unable to attend, but that General Cass could proceed to Washington and confer with the Secretary of the Treasury, and that he (Garrett) would be there on the succeeding day of that week. He did not appear. Mr. Hughitt called again

Interesting Presentation.

An interesting presentation took place at the Second Ward School House, on Ross street, yesterday afternoon. Mr. I. L. Wolf, esq., who has for the past two years been occupying that the position of principal of this school, recently tendered his resignation for the purpose of accepting a situation as teacher in Sawtelle's Academy. His scholars on the occasion of leaving him, formally assembled to give him a substantial token of their esteem.

Yesterday afternoon the scholars, with a large number of invited guests, assembled at the school house, and after the usual opening exercises were over, Mr. Wm. Gray, who presided with a large committee of scholars, addressed Mr. Wolf in a complimentary speech, telling him in Miss Lina Porter, an accomplished scholar of the school, was then called forward, carrying a sewing desk, which, a few years ago, was presented to Mrs. Wolf, on the occasion of her marriage, by the scholars of Mount Washington, and as she presented it to Mr. Wolf, she addressed him in a few appropriate words, expressing the sympathies of the scholars in the present bereavement of Mrs. Wolf, which, it will be remembered, occurred a few days ago. Mr. Wolf responded in a few appropriate words, thanking the scholars for their kindness, and assuring them that he would ever cherish the memory of the occasion with pleasure. Prof. Fisher and Sellin.

The Leader of to-morrow morning will appear in a new and elegant dress.

The Memory of a Friend.

Would you preserve the memory of a friend. One you now love; but who in the uncertainty of life may soon pass away? Then delay having his or her likeness taken by the best artist you can find. It will be sweet to look in after years upon the perfectly preserved face you loved so well.

We were led to these reflections by seeing one of the most perfect photographs we have ever looked upon of a friend of ours the other day. In thought to our readers a few remembrances of other days. The likeness we speak of was in the photograph rooms of Mr. D. Watson, 77 Sixth street. We witnessed also the taking of some life-size pictures in crayon, and the finished portraits of one could wish. A beautiful child with its flaxen drag was fixed in a moment upon the canvas, and the whole life-like and charming form. Mr. Bostle has advantages for taking pictures that are possessed probably by no other artist in this city. His instruments are of recent purchase, and his experience is of long duration. We would advise all who desire a perfect likeness to call at his rooms, 77 Fifth street.

Sundowns.

Now in of extra Sundowns just range of at 128 Wood street. Only $1.

A Word to Gentlemen.

H. Oppenheimer & Co., the fashionable tailoring establishment, No. 54 Wood street, is receiving a reputation in the trade, both in styles and prices. Their fall stock is now coming their customers with his superb fits. For a first class house their prices are remarkably reasonable. Their stock of Pants, cassimeres, coatings, &c., are very rare and choice. Their assortment of summer underwear is superior to any in the western markets. Gentlemen, remember the place, 54 Wood street, Smithfield and Diamond.

Straw Hats.

Several new styles of straw hats at Wilson's, No. 128 Wood street. Not to be found at any other houses in the city.

A Very Pleasant Hotel.

We would say to strangers visiting our city that the St. James Hotel, 4th and 5th Liberty street, is one of the pleasantest stopping places in the city. Its location is excellent, being situated on the Fourth ward line of cars, and within a few minutes' ride of the depots. You can also be accommodated in the house, paying only for what you order. The rooms are large and well ventilated, and the table is supplied with the best the market affords. Give them a call.

Remarks on Consumption, by Dr. Keyser.

Everywhere the confession is free that Consumption is a formidable disease. It sweeps into untimely graves millions of human beings every year. With all the arts and appliances of medicine with all the skill that human genius and investigation can bring to bear upon the subject, there is no general remedy that will cure the disease. That is, there is no specific that will go directly to the lungs, and heal and obliterate the sores and ulcers that are eating out their substance. One thing is clear to our mind, and we believe it will be conceded by most men who have reflected on the subject, and that is, that if the stomach and digestive organs are doing their work properly, there will be no tendency to lung or any other disease. When we look upon a patient with pale and dejected looks; with withered veins, hollow cheeks and sunken eyes; with cough and spitting of pus, hectic fever and chilliness, wasting of flesh, night sweats, smothering pains in the breast, swelling and bursting of the hands and feet, spitting of mucous streaks with blood, great debility and loss of muscular energy.

We cannot be mistaken. These are plain premonitions and almost constant symptoms of a terrible disease, whose gradual and constant steps are steadily engrossing all the avenues of life. We have cured many persons after all these symptoms have been developed, evidences of which exist all over this city. The food going to the nourishment of such a person is either of an improper kind, or else, the stomach has failed in its work to fit it for the reparative purposes which the natural functions demand. The body goes to decay for want of proper or properly prepared material to support the natural waste and the exhausted energies of the system. Bread and meat and wholesome fruits are of very little use when applied to a stomach whose functions are wasted and whose powers will not convert them into healthy blood, out of which even the very nails and hairs of our heads are made. We know well enough that the moment the stomach and assimilative organs are restored, that health and vigor will begin to flow with mathematical precision to every point where it will be most needed. We know that in the pure blood will be found a richer balsam than are in nature's most accessible stores, and as its globules are distributed along the impetus given to it by the propelling power of the heart, it will search out in their track, one or more of these stops in their way and attach themselves to the exhausted and languishing parts, anxious to be restored and leaping with the new life which it has imparted to its way. It will be seen that we regard consumption more of a disease of the blood than of the lungs; that is, as having its origin in an impoverished state of the blood, and that if we can restore the blood to a healthy and plastic condition, we can cure the disease without doubt. The pure blood which we send to the extremities of the lungs will have to give place to the new material furnished for their renewal. These are dead matters which ought to be carried out of the system, and which, if not carried out, will rot and decay the portions with which they come in contact.

They cannot remain in it when their place has been supplied by fitter material. We have had a good deal of stress, in our article on consumption, on the proper kind of food. The importance of the right kind of food is so much to be looked to as the right kind of medicine. Thousands of persons would get well, in a new district, without a grain of medicine, the food being a healer for disorders on the part of the physician as much as anything else. It is well known to most intelligent persons that medicines furnish no nutriment. Some that bear the name of medicines do but wrong the stomach and other organs of their natural functions. Building more. For instance, cod liver oil is out of order, bones and right diet will soon bring it into working order. When it is once brought into a healthy state it will make healthy blood, the sick man will be restored to confidence, and then new cures or none anywhere will be heard, and the empire of health will be re-established.

DR. KEYSER'S RESIDENT OFFICE FOR LUNG EXAMINATIONS AND THE TREATMENT OF OBSTINATE CHRONIC DISEASES, NO. 120 PENN STREET, PITTSBURGH, PA. OFFICE HOURS FROM 9 A. M. UNTIL 4 P. M.

Dr. Ahern,

Eye and Ear Surgeon and Physician for Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, well: 136 Sixth street.

Let Us Protect Ourselves.

The gloomy countenance of the strongest banker, the anxious look of the merchant, and the care-worn expression of the mechanic, are all caused by nature giving a timely warning that the blood, from whence comes the nourishment for the whole system, is unhealthy, impure, or under the influence of more than ordinary danger. Therefore, it is wisdom, it is prudence, it is the part of every man to protect himself against disease, by taking an antidote in advance; and it is made by purifying the system with HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS, which is the most complete protective against all the epidemics and endemic maladies that harass our land, whether in city, country, or on the ocean. As a tonic and alterative it has no equal. Nothing else will compare with them. Whoever suffers the pangs of indigestion, sweetness on the face of the earth whose HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS will not relieve
